The cam position sensor is critical to the proper functioning of the engine management system in its timing of engine events. The sensor delivers information on the position of the camshaft that actuates the engine's intake valves to the computer, which uses that information to deliver fuel and spark at the correct time.

well your first mistake was using the wrong oil for the wrong engine. Who ever told you to put 10w30 into your car was a complete idiot. The cars manual and the oil cap should both state 5w40 FULL Synthetic engine oil Only If your piston rings and valves are not already fried they will be in the near future.

We have had bigger issues to deal with lately with intermittent stalling on the interstate. We took car to dealer and we hope they solved the stalling, but for some reason they didn't get around to looking at AC. Sometimes when we have the AC on the vents start blowing warm or hot air instead of cold air. When I cut the unit off for a few ...
