

Essential Engineer Henry Petroski

The Essential Engineer underlines the contribution engineers have made to modern civilisation in resolving essentially practical problems, frequently in an intuitive fashion, without necessarily a full knowledge of the science behind the solution. Petroski eloquently describes how engineering often takes second place to "science", especially by biased or ill-informed journalists in the news media. And that science has often progressed because of the development of sophisticated ...

The Essential Engineer: Why Science Alone Will Not Solve ...

The Essential Engineer delves into the philosophy of engineering. To help understand engineering, Petroski contrasts it to science. He takes offense at people who praise engineering marvels as successes in "science," and he points out how engineers get none of the glory when they are successful (science is praised) while they get the blame when their designs fail. Although he advocates for ...
